Who's in the Spotlight?

Writer's Block Workshop welcomes Lea Carter as our Indie Author Spotlight!

Lea is the author of the series of books called the Silver Sagas. Lea's stories combine fantasy, adventure and sweet romance in tales of the residents of Fairydom.

Lea's latest installment is Book 6, The Seeker's Storm:

Truth Seeker Kuntza faces challenges above and below the sea's surface, fighting deadly misinformation as well as a bizarre and complicated plot to wipe out most of the Sky Fairy Tribe. Under his instruction, lightning machines are constructed to overcome a terrible snowstorm. But what of the grave threat from the Water Fairy Tribe—Kuntza's tribe—to the surface tribes?

Admiral Constance Kimberlite, Prince Cambrian Bijou and the young Historian Rolf Warner accompany the Seeker beneath the waves to assist him in his efforts to overcome his tribe's fears of an impending invasion. Meanwhile Amber Bullierd, daughter and heir of the rebellious Count Bullierd, threatens to block their success through intrigue and a terrifying coup attempt. With the fate of Fairydom hanging in the balance, there is no room for error.

I asked Lea to share her interests, likes and advice for writers:

Q. How do you keep your writing workflow and all these stories organized?

Lea: I'm terribly disorganized, but there are two things I absolutely have to keep track of. I use an Excel spreadsheet to help me keep track of which character is how old, who they're married to, etc. And I also use maps to help me keep distances, travel time, location, and so forth straight.

Q. What is your favorite thing about writing?

Lea: I love reading something new and writing has the same overall benefits, because whether I'm reading the story or writing it for the first time, it's new and exciting to me.

Q. When did you first start writing?

Lea: I once found a handwritten story dated from when I was nine years old. I doubt it was very good!

(I always say: you know you are meant to be a writer if you've been writing since childhood! ~Lynn)

Q. What advice would you give to someone starting out on the self-publishing journey?

Lea: Write the story! Whether you can't spell or punctuate or struggle with grammar, write the story. Then have it thoroughly edited. Don't let them change your voice, but know that editing is essentially polishing a rough diamond.

Q. Do you have any struggles with the writing process?

Lea: Marketing is my biggest struggle right now. I don't think I even knew BookBub existed, for example, until early June!

Q. What projects are you currently working on?

Lea: I'm partway through the next fantasy book, which took me by surprise by insisting on being written so soon after the release of The Seeker's Storm. I don't even have a working title yet.

(If the words want to flow, you have to let them go! Your work ethic is inspiring. ~Lynn)

Q. What types of books do you like to read?

Lea: I have very eclectic taste! But I also have pretty strict requirements, so it's easier to sum it up by author than genre. I adore Louis L'Amour (western); Alistair MacLean (spy/adventure); Emily Loring and L.M. Montgomery (sweet romance); Traci Hunter Abramson (spy/sweet romance)...and too many more to cover here. :)

Q. What other pastimes do you enjoy?

Lea: I play computer games, the kind where I get to repair the city and/or be the hero. I also watch a lot of television and movies, which helps me when I'm doing descriptive writing. While watching something I'm often supposed to be able to deduce emotions based on body language; if I can describe that, or remember a particularly good representation, it makes writing it that much easier.

(I do agree that writers can learn a lot from writers of other media, such as TV and movies. Seeing how they build suspense and emotion is definitely something we can glean from. ~Lynn)
